PROJECTS

Bank Customer Subscription Prediction — Predictive Modelling · Centennial College · 2024

- Built and compared multiple predictive models in SAS Enterprise Miner — Decision Trees, Logistic Regression, and Neural Networks — to identify customers most likely to subscribe to a term deposit from a Portuguese bank marketing dataset.
- Evaluated model performance using Average Squared Error (ASE): backward regression achieved ASE of 0.072, while a 3-hidden-unit neural network achieved the lowest validation ASE of 0.065, outperforming all other configurations.
- Identified call duration and prior campaign success as top predictors of subscription; presented model comparison findings with actionable recommendations for targeting future marketing campaigns.

Ferrero Rocher Ice Cream — Market Research & Competitive Analysis · Centennial College · 2024

- Conducted primary qualitative research (4 focus groups, 20 participants) to assess Canadian consumer perceptions, purchase intent, and competitive positioning for a new product launch in the Canadian market.
- Analyzed demographic and behavioural trends to identify target segments, pricing sensitivity, and product differentiation opportunities relative to established competitors including Unilever, Nestlé, and Chapman's.
- Developed 7 strategic market entry recommendations covering retail distribution, competitive pricing, in-store activation, and brand positioning — presented to faculty stakeholders.
